To all prospective students or current students,

Trustee (Education and Student Affairs),
Vice President
Kanazawa University

<Important>Precautions for university life based on prevention of the spread of new coronavirus infection

Kanazawa University believes that it is the university's responsibility to provide opportunities for all students to learn face-to-face while reducing the risk of new coronavirus infection and spread within the university as much as possible. Classes are conducted face-to-face in principle after thorough basic measures against infectious diseases. Details are summarized on the following reference websites, so please check the contents.

As a member of society, students should naturally follow a series of measures and responses. Each person should be aware and act responsibly.

Please stay at your "Commuting address" with plenty of time (ex. current students by March 23, prospective students for undergraduate by the timing of course registration guidance in March 30), and try to manage your health. The start date of classes has not changed from April 5th.

Events such as PC security checks, course registration guidance (for prospective undergraduate students), orientation, and entrance ceremony may be held remotely if it is difficult to hold face-to-face due to future circumstances. Other points to note are also described, so please check them as well.

For prospective students, we may notify you to the e-mail address registered in the admission procedure system, so be sure to set so that you can receive e-mails from the Kanazawa University (addresses including adm.kanazawa-u.ac.jp).

1. Events before class (→Refer to the attached sheet)

2. Careful commuting

- When attending to university, wear a mask and take measures to prevent infection, and if there is no purpose for attending school such as face-to-face classes, we strongly request that you do not attend in order to avoid the risk of spreading infection.
- Refrain from going out unnecessarily and non-urgently, and take measures to prevent infection even outside the university.

3. Health management after class starts

- Try to manage your health such as temperature measurement every day you attend the classes. Those who have symptoms such as fever or who have been tested as positive (including those who have close contact with them) will be suspended from attendance. If you have any symptoms, contact your affiliated student affairs section immediately and we will instruct you separately. In above cases, supervisors in charge of classes will prepare consideration such as instructing alternative measures for absenteeism.
- If you are worry about infection due to your underlying illness, you should consult with your affiliated student affairs section as we would consider providing remote classes.

4. Class formats

- Classes are conducted face-to-face in principle. However, if it is difficult to conduct all the lectures face-to-face by comprehensively considering the capacity of the lecture room and the number of students, we may use distance learning together after considering it at the college or graduate school.
- Check the syllabus on the Kanazawa University website to see if each class is conducted remotely or face-to-face.

5. Change of class period

- Take classes after using the hand sanitizer at the entrance of the lecture room.
- In order to identify the contact person when an infected person occurs, please manage attendance in all classes according to the attendance management device or the instruction of the instructor in charge of the class.
- To alleviate congestion in the cafeteria during lunch break, classes from after 3rd period will be delayed by 15 minutes as follows, and lunch break will be set longer. Please use the free time zone and try to use cafeteria in a distributed manner.

6. Cafeterias

- The cafeteria takes measures to prevent infection, such as measuring the temperature when entering the restaurant, installing partition plates, and widening the space between seats, so congestion is unavoidable during lunch time. Bring your own lunch such as lunch box as much as possible to avoid congestion during lunch break. You can also use lecture room for lunch, although there are restrictions on seating intervals.

7. Utilization of contact confirmation app

- Download "COCOA: COVID-19 Contact Confirming Application" developed by the Ministry of Health, Labor and Welfare, or actively use the notification system unique to the local government.
